HUNTING IN CROATIA WITH ST. HUBERTUS HUNTING TOURS

Republic of Croatia boasts a unique natural environment on a relatively small area. In a country of only 56,594 square kilometres (5,659,400 ha), two million hectares are covered by forests, another 400,000 are open spaces or semi-open wilderness, while various types of hunting grounds account for almost five million hectares of land. The Croatia's biodiversity is an important part of Europe's environment. The country is rich in wildlife due to its geographical position at the crossroads of several bio-geographical regions and its unique ecological, climatic and physical conditions. Habitats in Croatia include mountains, forests and a coastline with over a thousand islands and islets in the Adriatic. This combination of factors also gives the Croatia its specific character from a botanical point of view, determining its vegetative abundance, from the Mediterranean islands, the mainland coast and the hinterland, the highlands covered with coniferous forests interspaced with clearings, the hilly areas rich in deciduous forests, to the flood areas around the large rivers and the marshes and wetlands teeming with life. The landscape diversity offers thousands of opportunities for demanding hunters, ranging from hunting with birds of prey (falconry) to the experience of big game challenge. Hunting in Croatia is a well organised activity based on age-long tradition. Croatia possesses numerous undisturbed natural oases wherein there abide all three of great European predators: bear, wolf and lynx. The hunting area we offer you has 45 open and enclosed hunting grounds on the total area of around 500.000 ha. In the different grounds you find almost all game species: red deer, fallow deer, roe deer, mouflon, wild boar, chamois, kri kri ibryd ibex, feral goat, dalmatian sheep, axis deer and bears. According to your concrete request (primarily games and value of trophies you wish) we will prepare customised offer with description of the specific hunting area - accommodation plus all information you need for your trip in Croatia. Upon request we arrange detailed tourist program for you and your family.
